Offered by the Department

Master of Arts degree in women's studies.

Major in women's studies with the B.A. degree in liberal arts and sciences.

Minor in women's studies.

Certificate in women's studies, basic.

Certificate in women's studies, advanced (refer to the Graduate Bulletin).

The Major

The Department of Women's Studies offers students a course of study which explores traditional disciplines from the perspective of women, develops innovative multidisciplinary approaches, stimulates scholarly research in areas relevant to women, and provides an open forum for the exchange of ideas among students, faculty, and community. We embrace an approach that highlights intersections of oppressions and spans the scale from local to global. The department further seeks to bridge theory and action in working toward a society free from privilege based on age, class, gender and gender identity, nation, physical condition, race, or sexual orientation. SDSU has offered courses in women's studies since 1969 and has one of the strongest academic programs in the nation.

A degree in women's studies may be used as preparation for a wide range of careers. Professional opportunities exist in political and social agencies working with women and developing public policy on women's issues such as health care, employment, family violence, and education. Women's studies students prepare for careers in such fields as community organizing, education, journalism, law, personnel, psychology, public administration, and social services. The skills that women's studies majors develop in critical thinking and analysis are highly valued in many additional occupations and professions today. A women's studies major may also go on to advanced academic work preparing for a career as a women's studies scholar.

Many women's studies majors plan double majors to enhance their career opportunities.

Impacted Program

The women's studies major is an impacted program. To be admitted to the women's studies major, students must meet the following criteria:

- a. Complete preparation for the major;
- b. Complete a minimum of 60 transferable semester units;
- c. Have a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.0.

To complete the major, students must fulfill the degree requirements for the major described in the catalog in effect at the time they are accepted into the premajor at SDSU (assuming continuous enrollment).

Major Academic Plans (MAPs)

Visit <http://www.sdsu.edu/mymap> for the recommended courses needed to fulfill your major requirements. The MAPs website was created to help students navigate the course requirements for their majors and to identify which General Education course will also fulfill a major preparation course requirement.

Women's Studies Certificate

(Offered through SDSU Global Campus)

(SIMS Code: 119504)

The women's studies basic certificate is offered to non-degree seeking students to provide training in education, health care, community activism, social service agencies, and those concerned with issues relevant to women's lives. Completion of the certificate will increase understanding of women in the humanities, health, and social sciences, as well as become proficient in theories unique to the discipline. Students will learn how women lived, worked, thought, resisted, created knowledge, and engaged in cultural activism.

Students register in upper division Women's Studies courses through SDSU Global Campus. Before being admitted to the program, students must meet with an adviser to map out suitable courses. Applications may be obtained from SDSU Global Campus. Applications may be submitted prior to entering the program or before the completion of six semester units of coursework.

The certificate requires 12 units (four courses) to include Women's Studies 590 (fall) or 536 (spring) and three courses selected from the following overview areas:
