General Information

The Department of Linguistics and Asian/Middle Eastern Languages offers graduate study leading to the Master of Arts degree in linguistics. The interdisciplinary program provides broad educational opportunities through two specializations: 1) General Linguistics, for those planning to pursue a doctorate in theoretical areas (e.g., syntax or phonology) or for those who plan to work in a language-related field in industry or education; 2) applied linguistics (TESOL), for students intending to teach or design curriculum for ESL/EFL/ELD classrooms (including community college and K-12 levels) or planning to pursue a doctorate in applied linguistics. In addition to completing coursework for one of the specializations, students are required to submit a thesis (Plan A) or pass a comprehensive examination (Plan B).

All students who complete the required program will receive a Master of Arts degree in linguistics. If requested, the department will provide a letter designating a student's specialization for purposes of employment or application for further study. The specializations and language research interests of faculty members in this program are:

Eniko Csomay – Classroom discourse, corpus linguistics, discourse analysis, language variation, research design and methods, and teaching English as a Second Language.

Jean Mark Gawron – Computational linguistics (machine translation, narrowing, parsing, pragmatic); semantics (anaphora, comparatives, lexical semantics, quantification).

Jeffrey P. Kaplan – Discourse-functional syntax, English grammar, language and law, and pragmatics.

Gregory D. Keating – First, second, and heritage language acquisition, sentence processing in monolingual and bilingual speakers of Spanish and English.

Ryu Kitajima – Language assessment, second language acquisition, teaching methodologies and language pedagogy.

Robert P. Malouf – Computational linguistics, machine learning, morphology, syntax, and text analytics.

Deborah Poole – Classroom discourse analysis, ESL teaching methods and materials, language/literacy socialization, and literacy event connections of speech and writing.

Betty T. R. Samraj – Discourse analysis, English for specific purposes, ESL methods and materials, genre analysis, systemic-functional linguistics, and written academic discourse.

Ruey-Juan Regina Wu – Conversation analysis, functional linguistics, language assessment, language pedagogy, pragmatics, teaching methodologies, and teacher training.

Zheng-sheng Zhang – Chinese language (dialects, structure, stylistics, writing system); language pedagogy, technology for language teaching.

Admission to Graduate Study

In addition to meeting the requirements for admission to the university with classified graduate standing, as described in Part Two of this bulletin, the student must have a Bachelor of Arts degree in linguistics or a related field that would demonstrate adequate preparation for the program.

Students applying for admission should electronically submit the university application available at <http://www.calstate.edu/apply> along with the $55 application fee.

All applicants must submit admissions materials separately to SDSU Graduate Admissions and to the Department of Linguistics and Asian/Middle East Languages.

Graduate Admissions

The following materials should be submitted directly to:

Graduate Admissions

Enrollment Services
San Diego State University
San Diego, CA 92182-7416

1. Official transcripts (in sealed envelopes) from all postsecondary institutions attended;

NOTE:

- Students who attended SDSU need only submit transcripts for work completed since last attendance.
 - Students with international coursework must submit both the official transcript and proof of degree. If documents are in a language other than English, they must be accompanied by a certified English translation.
2. GRE scores (<http://www.ets.org> SDSU institution code 4682). All students are required to submit GRE scores. The required minimum scores in each section are 144 (quantitative), 153 (verbal), and 4.0 (writing);
 3. English language score, if medium of instruction was in a language other than English (<http://www.ets.org> SDSU institution code 4682). Students who have a B.A. from a university where English is not the primary medium of instruction are required to submit either TOEFL iBT or IELTS scores. The required TOEFL iBT score is 90 or higher. The required IELTS score is 7.0 or higher. Note that these scores are higher than those required by the university.

Department of Linguistics and Asian/Middle Eastern Languages

The following admissions materials must be submitted electronically.

1. Statement of purpose (250 words) which demonstrates an understanding of the SDSU program and which shows interest in an area of research that is within the department's score of expertise;
2. Names and e-mail addresses of two professors who can evaluate the applicant's academic potential for success in a rigorous M.A. program. Recommenders will receive an e-mail link to upload their letter of reference to DecisionDesk. Although we strongly encourage academic references, non-academic references (e.g., from employers) may be submitted if a significant amount of time has passed since earning the last degree.

A student who is deficient in any of the above requirements may be considered for conditional admission. A candidate may be required to complete specified courses or earn a minimum GPA within a specific time period in addition to completing the minimum 30 units required for the degree.

Linguistics

The fall semester graduate application (Cal State Apply online application) deadline is March 1. In order to ensure consideration, other application materials must be sent to the Office of Graduate Admissions (transcripts and test scores) and to the department (statement of purpose and recommendation letters) by April 1. Our program does not admit new students in the spring semester.

For information regarding the admissions process, visit the department website at <http://linguistics.sdsu.edu>.

Advancement to Candidacy

All candidates must satisfy the general requirements for advancement to candidacy as described in Part Four of this bulletin.
